DESCRIPTION

Writing in the 2008 wake of his father's untimely death, Autry Rene Fulbright called on some of his closest friends to help him channel his grief via quarter-inch tape, reverb pedals, and Gospel choirs. The result is a collection of songs (recorded by one of said friends, Gerard Smith of TV on the Radio), which exist as a beautifully succinct examination of the immutable ties of family and the difficulty we humans have with accepting death.

The core of the group is Eric Rodgers (guitar/vocals), Miyuki Furtado (drums / bass / guitar / vocals), and Destiny Montague (guitar / vocals / percussion), a trio of musicians able to make songs about death sound unmistakably alive, emerging as a tangle of dark hued Soul, yearning minimalism and warmly reassuring rock music.

PRESS

"their washed out guitars and haunting melodies aren't to be missed."

- CMJ

"Heaven is an appropriate title for such an enlightening, beautifully lush set, with washy guitars and dozens of vocals, recalling acts like Spiritualized."

- Billboard
