"I've been obsessed with Odddatee- one of the area's most mysterious rappers- since first hearing the song "Ricans" back when the dalek guys did some guest DJing on my show.... During that session, they played an MP3 of the unreleased track which I have re-aired numerous times since then, and it always gets the phone ringing and emails rolling in."

OVERVIEW

Hailed by Blow Up as "one of the most dynamic live hip-hop performers we have seen in years," Bronx, NYC born-and-raised ODDATEEE made his solo debut with Steely Darkglasses and comes back with his new full length Halfway Homeless, which packs 12 hard hitting gritty underground hip hop tracks from the utter edge of sanity. Produced as a collaboration between ODDATEEE and däleK (Ipecac Records), Halfway Homeless follows the form of Steely Darkglasses but the production is even more impressive. The rhymes follow form and up the ante as well. Whereas the debut LP featured the rhymes of "living a eudaimonious street life that seemed to be invaded by aliens only Odddatee could see," with Halfway Homeless the aliens are having the hallucinations too and talking back.

Odddatee's musical journey started after hooking up with Komplx (R. Vega), a gifted producer from Union City, NJ., ODDATEEE became a founding member and ten year veteran of THE LABTEKS, a 30 member crew responsible for one of the most innovative hip hop albums you've probably never heard. Taking Komplx's lead, and drawing influence from the rest of the crew, ODDATEEE grew more comfortable creating tracks that painted outside of the lines rather than rehashing the usual tried-and-true conventions. Since the release of Steely Darkglasses in late 2001, ODDATEEE has collaborated in the studio and on stage with DR. ISRAEL, däleK, ISIS, CHERRY VALENCE, THE SOFA SURFERS, MIKE LADD, ANTI-POP CONSORTIUM, SMUT PEDDLERS, DJ SPOOKY and PRINCE PAUL to name a few. Since the release of Steely you may have caught him on his collaboration records with Markus Kienzl of the Sofa Surfers, Karuan's Chocolate Distance track, "Reflexions of a Poem", as well a part of the Deadverse Massive split 12" with Dalek and Destructo Swarmbots (Public Guilt).

Fall 2008 will see the madman / maestro coming to your town with a host of new tricks he always seems to have up his sleeve.
